Excellent Beauty: The Naturalness of Religion and the ...

Science, Eric Dietrich claims, is the most open door into profound mystery that human beings have yet invented. Excellent Beauty urges science to wrest control of the discourse of mystery from religions, which have fiercely defended their claim to be the exclusive purveyors of mystery for centuries. The mystery science reveals is not a god who loves us, but an unknowable universe in which we must learn to take care of ourselves.

Eric Dietrich, Excellent Beauty: The Naturalness of Religion and the Unnaturalness of the World, Columbia University Press, 2015, 191pp., $30.00 (hbk), ISBN 9780231171021. Many people intuitively tend to think that religion deals with the sacred, with awe and mystery, while science deals with the natural world, which it strips of wonder and " disenchants " (to use a phrase by the sociologist Weber).

Excellent Beauty boldly breaks the code of silence that keeps coolly rational academics from attempting to link evolution and theology. Dietrich reflects on some of the deepest mysteries of religious thought, but he does so from the viewpoint of a philosopher with deep training in logic and firmly grounded reasoning.
