Love Is A Verb - 30 Days To Improving Your Relationship ...

Because love is not a one-time thought or feeling. It's a continual action, continual choice, continual promise to another person. Love is a verb. Love is looking at someone and deciding that you want to love them even when they mess up, even when they fall down, even when they're not the same person, even when they fight with you or make you cry. Love is kissing someone and finding ways to be passionate towards them, even when there are a thousand distractions, even when there are ...

Love is a verb ... and much more. It's true that love requires action. But it's also much more. Love offers purpose. 1 Corinthians 16:14 says to "let all that you do be done in love." Love is the reason we commit to our spouse. Care for them. Protect them. Shelter them in life's storms. Love is from God. When we lose ourselves in His love, we can freely love our spouse in word and deed.
