Wine it is the milk of Venus, And the poet's horse accounted: Ply it, and you all are mounted. 'Tis the true Phoebian liquor, Cheers the brains, makes wit the quicker. Pays all debts, cures all diseases, And at once three senses pleases. Welcome all who lead or follow, To the Oracle of Apollo.

Inns and Taverns of Old London - building history

In the reign of Charles II Birmingham began to rise rapidly in importance, and its commercial progress then became its most distinguishing feature; the only other incident of importance being the disgraceful riots of July, 1791, against the Dissenters, when the houses and papers of the illustrious Priestley, of William Hutton, the Historian of Birmingham, and other distinguished men, were ...

According to Cleminson (1983), a new workhouse was set up at Mile End Old Town in 1803 following local protests about the local Parish Committee's misuse of the Poor Rate. A house was leased for the purpose from a Revd. Thirwell. By 1828, 284 inmates occupied the then hopelessly overcrowded premises.
