The carburetor used by Yamaha's Raptor 50 all-terrain vehicle relies on a constant flow of air to draw fuel into the engine. An adjustable pilot screw controls the carburetor's pilot system, which feeds the engine from idle to a quarter throttle through a single fuel jet housed under the carburetor. The position of the screw determines how much air is pulled into the pilot system, drawing more ...

My son Raptor 50 does 30+ mph. Oh yes that right. The Quads was design for small riders in mind. Small handlebars, brake handles and switches for little hands. what happens when you put him on a bigger Quad? Well you know.Now back to make the 50 and the 80 faster. They both have different things done to them at the factory. The 50 more because it was design for smaller rides. You have to start ...
